[From London Society.] Noel Rashleigh's Wedding.

[CONTINUED FROM YESTERDAY.] "When a man gives himself up to one pursuit, to which he gives up the whole of his time and energy, it is apt to become a second nature grafted upon the first; so that he is unlike to consider those trifles which make the sum of human things, and go to the fulfillment of domestic happiness. Mr. Rashleigh, Gertrude is very young; in reality, though not in years, she is a mere child. I beseech you to take thought of her."
"Madam," replied Noel, looking at her with hazy, uncomprehending eyes, "her happiness shall be my dearest care."

And Miss Chester reading reversely, the

And Miss Chester, reading perfectly the expression of his face, knew that it would be hopeless to say any more.

We left Mr. Rashleigh, however, in the railway carriage on his return home after that memorable last visit before the wedding, the day for which had been fixed. As the distance increased between himself and Gertrude the echoes of her voice ceased to haunt him; and by the time he reached his own house his meditations concerning some little alterations he had proposed to himself therein were oddly mixed with a wonder whether a certain pamphlet ordered before he left home had arrived in his absence. He went to the study or laboratory, the construction of which had excited the village wonder some few years ago, when he finally gave up the farm on which his father had grown wealthy. A packet that met his eye was inimical to the alterations; they could be made at any time; and he was eager to dip into this new treatise on an old

The voice of his future brother-in-law roused him from a long fit of absorption, and he started up only half awakened from and he started up only half awakened from his reverie—one of those reveries concern-ing which Gertrude already knew some-thing—very little yet, and which she after-wards took to call "sublimates," with that rueful sort of jesting which smothers a sigh. "Oh, I was coming to you, George," said

Mr. Rashleigh, bringing himself back with a jerk. "It's to be next week-Wednesa jerk. "It's to be next week—Wednesday—yo." can come, I suppose."
"Yes; I shall run up the day before, How did you lea ve them?

"Very well."
"And from London you go where?" "Go!" repeated Mr. Rashleigh, puzzled; oh, I see. Yes. Upon my word I am not sure that we fixed decidedly. To the north, sure that we fixed decidedly. To the north, I think it will be."

"The lakes? Very nice to be you," said the curate, with a half sigh. "I must go. I only looked in upon you in passing."

And Mr. Rashleigh, left alone, fingered the leaves of that treatise a little longer, and then closed it, and went to walk up and down on his lawn, that he might think.

Yes, it would be recrupted Government.

Yes, it would be very nice; George was right about that. Very nice to have a pright little fairy singing about the lone-y house, and making it merry with her own light-heartedness. Very nice ly house, and making it merry with her own light-heartedness. Very nice when he left his study to find her waiting for him, ready to talk or to be silent; to sit as she had sat for a little while the evening before, with her head resting on his should-er and her hand in his; or to walk with him about those fields on which he had tried his unsuccessful experiments, and which were now let to his neighbor, Mr. Frankton. Noel Rashleigh spent the next half-hour as a lover should spend it, and then with a sudden practical thought he turned back into the house, and wrote to the country town for the very best piano which could be furnished at a short notice from a provin

WHAT THE PARISH SAID. "I'll never believe it. As for the first re-port of the marriage, Mr. Rashleigh is much too sensible a man to do such a thing; and for the second"—

The speaker stopped. It was as though the very enormity of that second report took her breath away. She, Mrs. Rodington Haye, was calling upon her neighbor, Mrs. Frankton, and the two ladies, having strolled into the garden, were supposed to be admiring the flowers.

"As for the second installment of the re-"it is simply laughable."
"Like most reports, to be accepted, if accepted at all, with a reservation," respondd her companion.

Mrs. Rodington Haye glanced from the scarlet geranium, whose faded blossoms her friend was cutting off, towards the spot where the chimneys of Mr. Rashleigh's house seemed to blend with the

"Then the marriage also must be nonsense. A girl of eighteen! Why, it is absolutely ridiculous,"
"That I had from Mr. Chester himself," replied Mrs. Frankton, "so of course it is true. And I don't see exactly why it is ridiculous. I am not sure about her age en; I only know that she is

"You had it from Mr. Chester?"

"You had it not."

"Yes. The wedding takes place the "Yes. The wedding takes place week, I believe."

Mrs. Haye—she was very particular about that finale: it distinguished her from the commoner Hays to be found in the provincial town—indulged in a speculative grimace. Of course Mr. Rashleigh had a right to be married if he liked, and without consulting his neighbors: nevertheless there was some slight feeling of agrievement astir amongst them. They had grievement astir amongst them. lor. More than once he had lent the lawn before his house as a croquet-ground; and although Mrs. Haye herself cared nothing about croquet, yet she did like the liberty and license with which on such occasions she went through Noel's rooms, examined his furniture, and, in common with others, made herself perfectly at home in them. It was very useful to have such a house in the parish; and of course, if a mistress came to it, all that would be altered. But as to the second bit of gossip—whisper it gently—how it could possibly have arisen, who first made it up, or heard it, or dreamt it, no one could find out. If it were not for the exertions of Captains Speke and Grant, I might perhaps say, as well try to discov-

I might perhaps say, as well try to discover the source of the Nile; but that platitude has been robbed of its point.

The report was, then, that the new Mrs. Rashleigh intended to take the lead in the parish.

"It has been traced to the Lisles," said there than at home." He says: Mrs. Have, somewhat inconsequently as to the foregoing conversation, but appropos of the report; "and Mrs. Lisle cannot tell ex-actly where she heard it first. Take the lead, indeed! Upon my word, it is too absurd for comment. Young ladies in these days do certainly not know their place. I suppose she is going to reform us all. Take the lead!"

Mrs. Haye, being the widow of a professional man, and possessing an independent

Mrs. Haye, being the widow of a professional man, and possessing an independent fortune, arrogated to herself a certain importance in the parish, which was conceded, partly perhaps to a self-assertive power, and partly to a very uncertain temper.

"The marriage itself is, no doubt, an intrigue between the curate and his sister," she proceeded. "Everybody knows how poorly the clergy provide for their children—and just think of the seams of Mr. Chester's coats! Of course this is altogether admirable for them both."

"I think you go a little too far," ventured

Mrs. Frankton.

Mrs. Frankton.

Her visitor stooped, and laid one yellow kid finger on the faded geranium.

"The thing is—are we to notice her?" Mrs. Haye's tone was solemn and impressive and the speech altogether had a magnificent sound. Underneath it there was an uneasy, restful doubt lest, in the innumerable divisions which do so singularly intersect the classes with lines difficult to comprehend, the new Mrs. Rashleigh should think herself above her neighbors in the social scale. Something of this must have cropped out; for Mrs. Frankton, looking upon the yellow kid finger, broke into a laugh of genuite converge.

"At any rate," she said, "as we have hitherto been very good friends with Mrs. Rashleigh, I suppose we shall be neighborly enough to call."

Some unhappy thread had surely got entangled in the fabric of poor Gertrude's fate, and had been enwoven with it. Prejudice had crept on before her, and was already doing her incalculable mischief. If these gossippers would only have stopped to consider the actual foundation for their decisions! But that is a thing seldom

"Oh! I dare say she will be trying to visit

"Oh! I dare say she will be trying to visit at Sir James Field's, and possibly with Lord Cavendish himself. We cannot keep up with that sort of thing, you know." Again Mrs. Frankton laughed.
"Upon my word," she said, "I am quite tired of Mrs. Noel Rashleigh before I have seen her. She has had more than could be compressed into nine ordinary days already. How do you think my rose-hedge ready. How do you think my rose-hedge looks?"

CHAPTER IV.

HER IMPRESSION.

It was a somewhat dreary morning in November, that month which is so unfairly maligned as suicidal, and which is so often one of the mildest and most agreeable months in the latter half of the year. Gertrude Rashleigh left her seat at the breakfast table with some haste, and knelt down at a low window which she threw open, leaning over the stone sill outside. The proximate cause for this change of posture must have been the approaching footsteps of a servant or the de-fact for a mistress to confess, but Mrs. Rashleigh was afraid of servants. This morning she was afraid of everything. She was so lonely, and wretched, and low-spir-ited, that it was hard to keep back the tears, and gulp down the lump in her throat, a giving way to which would, she reflected, be so very childish. She scolded herself, be so very childish. She scolded herself, instead of thus giving way. What did she want? Had she not all, and more 'han all, that could possibly be desired? Was not her husband kindness itself; and had she ever heard a harsh word from his lips? Never! Perhaps it was early days for that yet; and perhaps also, in the midst of her self-scolding, the shutting of the distant door of his laboratory foll upon her ear with a blank boratory fell upon her ear with a blank, chilly reminder of the desolate and aimless day before her. A day like yesterday, and the day before, and, oh! so many days be-fore, that she could hardly remember when they began, and certainly could not look forward to the time when they would end. And then her thoughts wandered back to the first few days of her life in this new home. How happy they were! How constantly Noel had been with her! What pleasant walks they had taken together about the fields, and down under the will-be the standard of the standard her bed started. lows by the riverside. And he had started the project of a boat, in which he was to row her to the ruins of an old abbey a few miles lower down the river; and George was to go with them and make a pic-nic of it. And the cooing of woodgeons was in her ear again; the rippling the clear beautiful water, as the willow branches kissed it: and she saw again the great pink beds of wild geranium, and the wild yellow iris, the foxgloves, forget-me-nots, and countless wild flow ers growing in the coverts by the river. In the fields, too, the startled pheasants ran from the path, scarcely fearing her suffi-ciently to fly outright. And then the rab-bits and hares, and the thousands of birds with their marvellous songs—all new to her! But, above all, Noel had been there. And the wife of a few months roused her-self, for a great hot tear had fallen on her hand, and more threatened to come—a shower more like July than November; hot and thundery.

"I won't do it," said Mrs. Rashleigh, pas stonately. "I will not—it's wicked."

And so tear after tear fell, and was wiped away with angry vehemence, and still they existed in coming. "Aunt Jean, Aunt Jean, what would you say to me now? Oh, I wish I had some one to scold me for being so wicked and un-But Aunt Jean would never come uninvited, and how was it possible to invite her, when she would see and know all?

The Philadelpha Inquirer remaks that there are three kinds of army news. "The best, most satisfactory, and which contains something tangible, is news based on orders issued from headquarters, regarding preparations for the movements, or the official an ations for the movements, or the official annoucement of victories elsewhere, &c., communicated to the troops through their immediate commanders. Next in order comes chin news, which consists in somebody hearing somebody told him he got from somebody who heard it from some reliable compatibility.

Sentimental young ladies now use chloroform when the marriage ceremony is being performed. A white handkerchief saturated with chloroform, and applied to the mouth, slides the "dear cweachar" into the blissful state! Oh! delicious!

DAILY UNION PRESS.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1865.

Parisian Rumers.

The Paris correspondent of the New York Times says the excitement over the possibility of a rupture between France and the United States is on the increase in that city and "causes infinitely more uneasiness

All sorts of possible and impossible rumors are fiying about on the subject, and on all sides a demand is made for a word of explanation from the Government.

Among other statements is one to the effect that a coldness has intervened between the Governments of France and Russia, because the latter has gained the ascendency at Washington, and because it was by the advice of Russia that Mr. Lincoln consented to go to meet the Confederate com-missioners at Fortress Monroe! The logic of the thing you will see is in the fact that on former occasions we refused the entrea-ties of France to try to bring the rebels to terms by peace conferences and then yielded to the solicitations of Russia.

Once started, it was just as easy to go further, and to the above report has been added a sequel, or more properly a corollary, to the effect that a secret understanding has been come to by the United States and Russia, by which Russia promises that when the United States attacks France and England in Mexico and Canada, or France alone in Mexico, she will recommence the march again through the Danubian Principalities toward Constantinople. It suffices to mention these reports, to show you the extent of the excitem the subject.

The French official and semi-official papers have within a few days changed their tone again, and become more hostile to the Union cause. He states that the separation of citizens into Northern and Southern sympathizers is becoming more and more sharp and decisive, and that this is as visible in governmental circles as in the public.

These two parties, he affirms, "quarrel almost with the same vivacity as a Northern and a Southern man would do, and this fact accounts for the many contradictions and the many currents of opinion, or rather fluctuations of opinion, we observe in the French press." Such a fact by itself will prove a most stringent and effective restraint upon any ambitious or sinister designs Louis Napoleon-the most wily and uncrupulous of all royal scoundrels-may have against this republic. Prince Napoleon, Emperor that is to be, if the present Emperor holds on to his head long enough, guest in regard to emancipation, for that he had upheld President Lincoln in his emancipation measures from the start, and in fact the Prince and his French friends impulsive desire to beg for less violent demonstrations on the remover's part; but French people were also. Rev. Stuart Robinson, DD., Enlighten-ing the Canadians.

We learn from the correspondence of the new religious paper, of which the Rev. John C. Young, co-pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church announces himself as ecretary and Agent, and which from its general tone, seems to be a sort of "True Presbyterian, Junior," that Stuart Robinson has been giving Sunday evening lectures to the Secessionists and citizens dwelling in the regions round about Toronto, in the Province of Canada West. The Reverened gentleman has been proving from the principles and practices of Moses and Abranam, and the Patriarchs generally, that buying and selling human beings at the auction mart, as practiced in the Southern States, is a very pious occupation, and withal has abundance of Bible precedent in its support. We have no doubt the Reverened gentleman made out his case to the satisfaction of his audience, and that he could easily prove the rightfulness of conubinage and polygamy by precisely the same kind of logic. Brigam Young always falls back on the Bible as he interprets it, whenever the immoralities and beastliness of Utah society are objected to in his presence. This is an old dodge of the chivalry in the United States, whatever it may be among the sympathizers in Canada, but it is altogether too late to save slavery by that sort of logic. The precepts and teachings of both the Old and the New Testaments may be put to a much better use.

The newspaper before alluded to informs us that the lectures of Mr. Robinson on this subject are published and stereotyped, and that a large edition is called for. We sincerely hope that the brethren will get a few comes into circulation at Richmond and other parts of rebeldom before it is too late. Indeed, we very much fear it is too late already. Neither the Church nor the State will have much use for a proslavery gospel after the winding up of this pro-slavery rebellion-and the winding up process is going on at a rapid rate. Stuart Robinson may be a very good logician, but he can no more withstand the logic of events than Mrs. Partington could stop the waves of the Atlantic ocean with her kitchen mop.

MRS. HUMPHREY MARSHALL EN ROUTE

South.—The Baltimore Clipper, of Tuesday

last, says:

Major J. L. Wharton, 5th Kentucky Cavalry, arrived in this city yesterday, haying in charge six political prisoners to be sent through the lines by order of Major General Palmer, commanding at Louisville, Ky. Among the party were Mrs. Humphrey Marshall (wife of the rebel ex-general) and two daughters. Mrs. M. has been quietly residing at Louisville, Ky., for some time, and recently applied to General Palmer to be sent through the lines, stating she was "rebelliously" inclined, that officer promptly acted upon her application. She expects to rejoin her husband at Richmond where he is practicing law. One of the daughters, to rejoin her husband at Richmond where he is practicing law. One of the daughters, who it seems has become enamored of a dashing Federal Colonel, is stated to have strongly demurred at the idea of going South, but the mother's will prevailed and she was induced to accompany the party. They left the city in the mailboat yesterday afternoon for Fortress Monroe.

Belligerent Colonel Harney. [For the Union Press.]

Colonel Harney, September 24, 1862, said:

And what are you going to do about it? Give up the Union and join the rebellion, because Abraham Lincoln has issued a mischievous, pestilent proclamation? His conduct will not alter our determination to fight forever for the Union of these States, Dissolve the Union, and then—what? Do you escape emancipation? Would not war come? And would it not then be a crusade against slavery?

The rebellion has brought all this upon us. It can bear no other fruit. The more power it gets the more calamities it will inflict.

Let the rebels now lay down their arms and obey the laws of the Federal Government, and the proclamation of the President is a nullity. They can relieve the country of any dangers or injustice from such a source. They will not do that; not an iota of their pride and ambition will they sacrifice. We can only say to them what we have always said: Obey the laws and drop the rebellion, or we will compel you.

The same Colonel, as late as 4th Februa ry, 1863, said: The secesh are now all for peace. The South began this contest by various acts of war. All this while the Government forbore. The war was for months all on one side. Why is it these secesh love peace so well, and at the same time feel such a fondness for the men who made the war, and who still insist on war? Let them go to their friends and talk peace.

One party can make war—it takes two to make peace. If we withdraw the army of the United States, will the South abandon her issue—a dissolution of the Union? Shall her issue—a dissolution of the Union? Shall the Government invite the rebels to take what they want for the sake of peace?

Kentucky warned, admonished, entreated these Southern States not to bring these calamities on us and them. They spurned our advice. They, at the same time, told heir people the war would not disturb them; that it would be on the banks of the Petersea, and Ohio. They have tried to them; that it would be on the banks of the Potomac and Ohio. They have tried to wage war here. As our worst enemies they have destroyed our property and plundered and murdered our people. We wish the peace party would make their dear friends in the seceded States keep the peace in Kentucky, before they cry peace.

Their cry of peace means simply to surrender to this rebellion; that it is all of it. It means to sell out Kentucky to her mortal t means to sell out Kentucky to her mortal nemies, who will never forgive her resis-

Emperor holds on to his head long enough, and don't hold on to his crown too long, is not only with the North, but takes extra pains to manifest the fact. This writer gives the following instance:

A few evenings ago a well-known Democratic politician of New York was invited to dine at the Prince Napoleon's, in company with some leading French Liberals, all of whom, including the Prince, expressed themselves strongly in fayor of the North and of abolition. The Prince said to the New York Democrat that the mebellion was a crime, and must and would be put down, and that in his opinion it was already near its close. He said that he differed with his guest in regard to emancipation, for that he had upheld President Lincoln in his emancipation measures from the start, and in fact the Prince and his French friends showed themselves so much better American.

An Important Problem in Science Settled.

Perhaps the most important discovery, and that which will most prominently mark the past year in the history of astronomical progress, is that which will most prominently mark the past year in the history of astronomical progress, is that which was announced to the Royal Society by Messrs. Huggins and Miller. This discovery upsets all the doctrines to which astronomers have pinned their faith during the present century. Every one is familiar with the term Nebuther's errain misty masses of matter from which light is emitted, and which can only be exstant and of the most powerful telescopes. These bodies, which appear as shapeless clouds of light at immense distances from the earth, have been of late years studied and observed by all classes of astronomers; and, more recently, they have been regarded as being simply huge clustere of fixed stars, which, on account of their enormous distance from us, appear blended the past year in the history of astronomical progress, is that which will most prominently mark the past year in the history of astronomical progress, is that which will most prominently mark the past year in the hi An Important Problem in Science Settled. enormous distance from us, appear blended together into a confused mass. Watchful ob-servers concluded as we have said; and it showed themselves so much better Americans the description of Mrs. Rashleigh, or perhaps both, since the expression of Mrs. Rashleigh's face was not one which would have borne the scrutiny of servants' eyes.

She listened to the noisy removal of the breakfast service, and once or twice had an searches of Funsen and Kirchoff, a new sys-tem of chemical analysis exists, by means of which we can tell from the light which a body emits what is the nature of its compo-sition, and since, this method has been put in practice in the case of the sun and fixed stars showing in them a constitution closely resembling that of our earth. Messrs, Hug-gins and Miller determined to put the light of the nebulæ to a similar test. The spec-trum analysis of the nebular light has been accomplished, and, wonderful to tell, it has revealed the presence of only one or two el-ements and these are glasses. Hence, the onclusion is inevitable that the nebulmare most probably euormous masses of lumin-ous gases or vapor. This important conclusion, which is one of the most remarkable that has been for a long while arrived at brings astronomers back, in some degree to the peculiar views of Laplace as express ed in his "Nebular Hypothesis."

Lace has a subtle and peculiar character quite independent of its costliness. It has myserious beauty, which partakes of the charm that lies in the wonderful wood-carvings in Gothic cathedrals. Lace, old carvings in Gothic cathedrals. Lace, old lace, is a product of art, not of manufacture; human life, human volition, is expressed in every inch of the delicate mesh, which makes the costly ground to set forth the pattern. There is individuality impressed upon each kind of lace, just as there is upon the great school of painting; for the artist in each put their seal upon their work. It took a lifetime to produce even a small quantity of lace. "Les belles et eternelles l'alenciennes," as they were called, requirquantity of face, "Les bettes et eternettes Valenciennes," as they were called, requir-ed so much labor that some workers could only produce twenty-four inches in the year. The changes in the atmosphere and the fluctuations in the health of the work-ers told on the finer kinds of lace; and it was a well-known fact, that if a piece were begun in the city of Valenciennes and finished outside the walls, it would be inferior, though it might be the work of the same hand, made with the same thread, and also hand, made with the same thread, and also on the same pillow. The flax of which the old Brussels and the point d'Alencon were made was cultivated on purpose; it was chiefly grown in Brabant, Haile and Courtrai, and had to be spun in undergound cellars, because contact with the external air made the thread brittle. The thread was made so fine as almost to clude the sight; the spinner had to go by the sense of touch, a vamining every inch as it left the distaff. examining every inch as it left the distaff, and the slightest irregulaity stopping the wheel. The room was kept in darkness, except for one single ray of light to fall on the thread, which was thrown up by a background of dark paper. As it was in the sixteenth century, so it is now. The wheel and distaff are still used to spin the flax for lace thread, and under the same conditions. No machine has yet been invented to equal the work of the trained flax spinner and her distaff. At the present day the hand-spun thread is often sold at £240 for one pound averdupois of thread, and at the French exhibition in 1859, it was attached the terretiment has been as the solution of the s stated that sometimes the price runs as high as £500 for the kilogramme. Fine lace may well be costly!—[London Anthem.

Sir William Dawes, Archbishop of York was very fond of a pun. His clergy dining with him, for the first time after he had lo with him, for the first time after he had lost his lady, he told them he feared they did not find things in so good order as they used to be in the time of poor Mary; and, looking extremely sorrowful, added, with a deep sigh, "She was, indeed, Mare Pacificum." A curate, who pretty well knew what she had been, said, "Ay, my lord, but she was Mare Mortuum first."

The following complacent Scottish remark upon Bannockburn was made to a splenetic Englishman, who had said to a Scottish countryman that no man of taste would think of remaining any time in such a country as Scotland. To which the canny Scot replied, "Tastes differ; I'se tak' ye to a place no far frae Stirling, whaur thretty thousand o' yer countrymen ha' been for five hundred years, an' they've nae thocht o' leavin' yet."

A DRAFT INSURANCE.

In Louisville and Jefferson county there are hundreds of men liable to draft whose business relations are such that serving the Government as drafted men, or procuring substitutes at the present high rates, are alike attended with peculiar hardships.

We have, after deliberate calculation and careful examination, concluded to insure men against the draft ordered for the 15th of Echapter (present persent).

Experience has shown that persons can be insured against the perils of fire and disease upon a fixed calculation of risks. Are no public and individual interests subserved by insuring against the contingency of being drafted? It is estimated that of the number

Accepting this ratio as a basis, we feel jus-tified in undertaking to insure against the incoming draft, and shall muster in acceptable recruits in proportion to the ratio of quota to the number on enrollment list. Each man insured will be given, on payment of premium of insurance, a certificate which shall entitle him to exemption, and in the event of his being drafted, we will furnish the substitute in his name and stead and thereby procure from the Board of En rollment his exemption papers, which are to be given him upon his returning said cer-tificate of premium to us. You are thus spared the pecuniary sacrifice which you must make when, after being notified that you are conscripted, you attempt to pay an exorbitant price for a substitute, when men take advantage of your individual necessity. You are then left to the prosecution of your business and the enjoyment of a home's privilege, and if poor, can you not better pay a moderate sum now than an exorbitant price for a substitute after the draft? price for a substitute after the draft? price for a substitute after the draft?

Believing that the public have confidence in our ability to perform what we propose, and of which we will furnish the most satisfactory evidence, we shall enter upon our undertaking. This proposition cannot fail to meet the wishes of hundreds in Louisville and Jefferson county, for it insures an accountable substitute to every drafted was cceptable substitute to every drafted man who may take insurance of us.

We have facilities that few enjoy, and shall be careful not to undertake more than we can safely, and without fail, thoroughly

We will insure against the draft ordered for the 15th of February, 1865, and all sup-plemental drafts to fill the quota under that eall for One Hundred Dollars

This sum strikes us as so moderate as to induce hundreds to step promptly forward, and avail themselves of the opportunity offered. Indeed, all who have not a representative in the service should secure this

WEDNESDAY. MARCH 29, 1865.

News of the Day.

The President has issued an order for the celebration of the fall of Sumter. General Anderson is to unfurl the same flag that he lowered, which is to be saluted by all the forts and all the rebel batteries that fired on the fort originally, and in addition to this, Henry Ward Beecher is to be invited to deliver an address on the occasion.

Our report of the late repulse of Lee be fore Petersburg has been accumulating for three days, and is not yet exhausted. Furwas the one great struggle for which we have waited—the desperate attempt to crush Grant before the arrival of Sherman, precipitated somewhat by Johnston's defeat precipitated somewhat by Johnston's defeat one on Saturday. Still the Senator as the constant of the state of the senator as the constant of the senator of

And if he evacuates, it is no longer easy to imagine what promising road is open to him. If he would join Johnston and throw the confederacy upon Sherman, he has delayed too long. For not only is Sherman firmly established on his new, short, and secure line of operations, and reinforced by Schofield from Newberne and Terry from Wilmington, but the two great armies of Wilmington, but the two great armies of the procedures have each to fight, under Wilmington, but the two great armies of the confederacy have each to fight under the moral disadvantage of recent defeat— a disadvantage which their junction will not sufficiently counterbalance. If he would retreat westward, he has d-layed too long. For the national forces are in position to press him with such-vigor that his army, already in the second raid disintegration, would not

Louisville is to be cursed with municipal rulers that for the next two years will be a drag to her progress and prosperity, the citi-

The contrast between life and death was finely illustrated at the court house meeting last evening, together with the folly of non-committalism in times of revolution, of attempting to lead men with a trumpet that "gives forth an uncertain sound." This will be apparent on reading the report of the meeting in our local columns. The meeting was an adjourned one. The first installment of it came off last Saturday evening. It was ostensibly a call to citizens generally, irrespective of party. This was made especially prominent in the invitation for last evening.

Well, the meeting convened according to adjournment and notice, Senator Guthrie, as on the former occasion, chief engineer. He nominated a chairman, and immediately that organization was effected, presented the remarkable resolution given in Our special dispatches give us a more satisfactory account of Sherman's victory at Averysboro and Bentonville than we have heretofore received. The fighting was severe, but Johnston was so badly whipped that he made no attempt to hold the railroad, retreating at once upon Raleigh.

sented the remarkable resolution given in our report, prefacing it with a few remarks. The resolution is certainly remarkable, taken in connection with the character of the call, and the Senator's remarks. These remarks contained a statement of the amount of property involved in the manamount of property involved in the management of our city government, and of surprise at the apparent lack of interest exthere days, and is not yet exhausted. Fur-ther particulars occupy great space in both our evening and midnight dispatches It is where the nomination of candidates was to

Since Johnston could not e-ren delay Sherman, it was necessary for Lee to strike at once; and since Lee is not only repulsed but attacked and beaten in turn, it is necessary for him to evacuate Richmond at once—else inscribe over the gates of hell.

In one on Saturday. Still the Senator as before was so prised at the lack of interest. And after the passage of his resolution that the "friends of Mr. Delph," notwithstanding their confidence in him, do hereby withdraw his name as a candidate for Mayor, he moved that the meeting adjourn! Mayor, he moved that the meeting adjourn! The forlornness, the mouldiness, and semiparalysis of the whole affair up to this point, well befitted the shuffling attempt to smuggle a partisan candidate upon the citizens of Louisville in the name of no-party. Citizens of all shades of opinion came as they were invited, and found themselves politely requested to say nothing and do nothing unless they were the "friends of Mr. Delph"-an anti-amendment Guthrie

Democrat! But the presence of these "all shades" produced paralysis amongst the "friends" with such-vigor that his army, already in process of rapid disintegration, would not hold together a month. He might reach the transmississippi deparlment; whether he would take twenty thousand men, one eighth of his estimated force, thither with him, is very doubtful. We shall be much pleased if he can take a hundred thousand—the country will be cheaply rid of so much transcaled. meeting not visibly diminished. Then followed the animated scene in which living men were the actors. Of course there was nothing more to be done than the mere expression of opinion, and that was done in an experimental properties. The pression of opinion, and that was done in a RAYMOND & CO, No. 74 Fourth street. an admirable and eloquent manner by Mr. Thomesson, the new chairman, whose words were received with lively applause. The constitutional amendment was the one in vitable theme, and the enthusiasm for it was apparently unanimous and was cer-

The fight on the left of the army of the Potomac on Saturday was much more severe than at first reported. Gen. Grant's official dispatch states our total losses at 119 killed, 800 wounded, ond 849 missing—total, 1,768. We took 1,879 prisoners. The rebel loss in killed and wounded Gen. Grant reports as much heavier than ours.

The Ohio Central was yesterday sold, the purchaser being, as is said, in the interest of a combination to transfer the Little Miami support to the Pennsylvania and Maryland roads.

We again rejoice in the success of our friends beyond the Grand River of the North. The Franco-rebel expedition which was likely to get spilled next Saturpublic, was likely to get spilled next Saturday? And was this what caused the sudden collapse of his interest in this "exceedingly important question?"

A Change Needed. In the speech of Mr. Guthrie at the court louse, as reported in the Journal of yesterday, he says: particularly in North Carolina.

Our dispatches furnish further evidence that the hotel burning scheme was concocted by rebel emmisaries in Canada.

Sidell's son-in-law, the Baron Erlanger, we must be careful as to the future.

Beware of Wickliffe Candidates.

[For the Union Press.] Phil. Tomppert, sen., E. S. Craig, Pat. Campion, and Dr. J. W. Knight are municipal candidates.

Last year, May 24, a "mass meeting" of the Louisville Wickliffe Democracy adopted resolutions reported by J. R. Buchanan, E. S. Craig, T. J. Conn, T. J. Frazier, Wm. Mix, H. F. Kalfus, S. M. Bernard, and W. A. Hauser, denouncing the Administration for "treachery," "abolition and negro equality despotism," attempted "barbarous subjugation and enslavement of the remaint of a braye and public records" and nant of a brave and noble people," and Lord knows what else; squinting at repu-diation; demanding the "discontinuance of tify themselves at this important crisis, they do it with their eyes open. "Slave property is lost to Kentucky," says Mr. Guthrie, and we have no doubt a large majority of the people of Kentucky agree with him and rejoice that it is so. Louisville should at once place herself in the advance movement of the new order of things, and we believe she will do it.

We are glad to see by the card we publish this morning, that, although Mr. Bland's losses are much greater than at first supposed, not one of his depositors or creditors will suffer. He is fully able to pay every dollar of his liabilities; and is solicitous that no one shall be for a moment uneasy in view of this bold robbery. We have heard of instances where he has anticipated payments and paid interest not yet due. That the loss will fall on himself alone is matter for both sympathy and gratulation.

MEETING AT THE COURT HOUSE LAST great circus. NIGHT .- MR. DELPH WITHDRAWS .- The adjourned meeting at the Court House last night of the friends of Mr. Delph, as a candidate for Mayor, was more numerously attended than the meeting beld last Saturday night in the Chancery Court Room. This may have been owing to the fact that it was understood it was to be a meeting of the citizens generally to take some action with a view to present a suitable candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal election.

Mr. J. R. Brown was elected Chairman, and W. L. Murphy and R. Flether were appointed Secretaries of the meeting. Mr. Guthrie, after some remarks on the importance of the eclection for city officers, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the friends of John M. Delph in this meeting have full confidence in him as a man, and one who would make a good Mayor and excellent officer, and give a correct account of the annual re-ceipts and expenditures of the city, and as far as possible promote its interests and prosperty; but owing to the numerous can-didates for the office, to some of whom many of his friends are committed, and there seems to be no general wish to make a nomination, we recommend the withdrawal of his name as a candidate.

Before the resolution was put to a vote, Mr. Delph made some remarks explaining the reasons which induced him to an-nounce himself as a candidate, and acquiescing in the withdrawal of his name from the list of candidates. Several gentlemen objected to the resolution on the ground that the meeting was not understood to be composed of the friends of any particular candidate, but of citizens generally. Mr. Guthrie said that none but the friends of Mr. Delph need vote on the resolution. If the friends of other candidates desired to organize a meeting afterwards they could do so. The resolution was then adopted.

A motion was made to adjourn, which was voted down. Mr. Brown declined to occupy the chair any longer, the object of the meeting having been accomplished, and on motion, Mr. Thomasson was called to the chair. On taking the chair Mr. Thomasson said this whole affair seemed a little strange to him. He had understood that the meeting was to be of citizens generally, not of the friends of any particular candidate. He was a citizen, and though not as large a perty holder as some other men. as much interest as any man in the welfare and prosperity of the city. Had he not understood that this was to be a meeting of citizens generally, he would not, probably, have been present. He thought some action to present a candidate should be taken, but thought that was not the proper time for it. He said there were two parties in the country, and there was no use to try to blink the fact. There was but one great question before the country; Congress had passed the Constitutional amendment abolishing slavery, and every man in favor of it should come out openly for it. He was in favor of making the fight on this issue. He had no candidate for Mayor, but he would vote for no man who was not in favor of removing the dead tion to present a candidate should be taken, who was not in favor of removing the dead carcass of slavery from Kentucky. Mr. Thomasson's remarks were frequently applauded.

A motion was then made to adjourn, which was adopted.

TURNED OVER AS PRISONERS OF WAR .-Col. Grayson and eight men, who were captured and have been held as guerrillas, were yesterday turned over to Capt. Pratt, commissary of prisoners at this place, as prisoners of war. Grayson and several of these men were sent to Lexington and tried before the military commission convened there as guerrillas, but there was not sufficient evidence against them, and they will now be held for exchange. Grayson was captured some time ago in Meade or Breckinridge county.

THE EQUESCURRICULUM.-Lent's great circus will commence a series of performances in this city next Monday night. In addition to the many features of attraction combined in this grand exhibition when it visited our city last fall, many new features have been added for the present season. It is now a mammoth concern. Mr. James Robinson, the world-renowned bareback rider, will become connected with this circus on its arrival here

Howes' CIRCUS.-There was an immense growd both at the afternoon and evening performances of Howes' Circus yesterday. All seem to concur in pronouncing this one of the best exhibitions of the kind ever given here. The performance of the Bedouin Arab troupe, and the riding are wonderful. To-morrow morning there will be another grand parade through the principal streets. Let none fail to go and see this LOUISVILLE THEATER.-Mr. Fairclough attracted another good house last night. In the character of "Othello" he achieved an unqualified success. Considering the many difficult feats in this great play, its presentation was highly creditable to the dramatic company of that popular place of amusement. To-night Mr. Fairclough appears as "King Lear" in Shakspeare's great play of that name.

"The Streets of New York" drew full house again last night. Frank Drew's success is assured. He owes a great deal to the company for their efficient support. Miss Gray's Alida is very life-like; and Mortimer's Dan deserves notice. The comedy will be repeated to-night.

COMPLIMENTARY BENEFIT .- A number of gentlemen, appreciating the talents of Mr. Booth Royd Fairclough as an actor, have tendered him a complimentary benefit, which will take place Friday night.

REGULAR MIDNIGHT REPORT.

Army of the Potomac.

Fifth Dispatch--Further Particulars of Lee's Repulse. The number of prisoners brought in by the 9th corps was reported yesterday correctly at 1,800. The loss in this corps is not far from the official figures, which have not yet been ascertained. After the fighting ceased at this point of the line it was thought that the attack might have been made to cover a more important one on the made to cover a more important one on the left, and consequently the entire army was put under arms, to be ready for any emer-

Gen. Humphrey was ordered to make a reconnoissance in front of his line in order to develope the enemy's strength, and ascertain their movements. This was done shortly before noon, and the picket line was here driven in or captured for a considerable distance. Our men continued to advance, and part of the division reached and took possession of a second line of light works, but the rebels afterwards charged the latter in line of battle and forced our men back to the line first taken.

This was principally caused by the fire from two batteries which they were enabled to throw along this advanced position. From this time till four P. M. the firing

From this time till four P. M. the firing was not very severe, the enemy having retired to their works, leaving a strong picket line to hold their pits.

At this hour the signal to fall in was given along the rebel line, and soon after a heavy column, appeared, and, forming a line of battle, advanced in a charge on Gen. Miles' division, but they were gallantly received by the heroes of this division, who soon drove them in disorder and with heavy loss.

Twice they repeated the charge to break through the line, and failing in this, they endeavored to turn the right flank, but General M. was ready for them here as at other points, and they finally fell back and disappeared, leaving their dead and wounded on the field. The roar of musketry on this ground was as severe and continuous for two or three hours as was ever heard, and was not surpassed even by that heard at the Wilderness. Gen. Miles and his officers and men received the highest praise for their gallant behavior on this occasion. The third division under Gen. Matt held the center of the line and repulsed each attack of the enemy with spirit, although the contest there was not as desperate as in front of the first division. The second division held the extreme left of the line to-ward Hatcher's. The brigade commanded by Gen. Smythe only being engaged they advanced at the same time with the rest of the line and took part of the enemy's forts with a number of prisoners. The losses in the second corps as near as as can be ascer-tained are 650 with probably 100 missing.

Among the casualties are: Colonel Bilsee, of the 49th Pennsylvania infantry, Lieut. Colonel Andrews, of the 20th Indiana, and Major Hamilton, of the 100th Pennsylvania, were wounded, and Captain Stewart, of the 100th Pennsylvania, killed.

The engagement between the 6th corps and the enemy here, as at other parts of the line where the 2d and 9th corps fought, was brought on for the purpose of ascer-taining whether the rebel works were occupied in force. Some of the troops finally reached the rebel pickets, and took about forty-seven prisoners, driving the balance back to the main ranks. The enemy's batback to the main ranks. The enemy's bacteries were very active here, and did a good deal of mischief. Firing was kept up till dark without any attempt on their part to regain the lost ground.

The casualties in the 5th corps were 35 officers and 414 men. Among the killed are Capt. Douglass, 139th Penn.; Adjt. Martin, 122d Ohio; Adjt. Crawford, 139th Penn.; Lt. Col. J. G. Parr, 139th Penn.; Major J. F. Ritch, 93d Pa.; Col. Killear, 93d Pa.; Col. C. 4. Milliken, 43d N. Y.; Capt. Rample, 139th The number of prisoners in our hands as the result of the day's operations, is 2,271 enlisted men and 88 officers, besides about 150 wounded in our hospitals.

An order is being issued to the army congratulating the officers and men on the plendid victory achieved over the country, and thanking them for their behavior on the occasion.

To-day a good deal of picket firing has been kept up along the lines, but without any casualties as far as known. About 25 deserters came in to-day bringing, however, no news.

Battle of the 25th--Sixth Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 28 .- The Time's correspondent with the left wing of the army of the Potomac of the 25th says the Fifth, Second, and Sixth corps were in motion this morning. The Second was pushed forward and their line of works. Shortly after 8 o'clock the center corps became hot ly engaged with Johnson's division of An-

Gen. Humphrey succeeded in driving in the rebel picket line on his main line, which speedily moved up to the front, when a desperate engagement took place. After repeated charges the 2d corps occupied the rifle-pits of the rebel line and have held them up to the present time. The 6th corps formed in line of battle along their main line of defense, and shortly the 2d corps moved forward. Wright sent his 2d and and divisions, and the engagement thus became general along the entire line of the left, driving the picket line before them.

The Sixth corps kept on until they had full possession of the main line of rifle pits, full possession of the main line of rifle pits, taking a large number of prisoners. As soon as the enemy saw that the Sixth corps purposed holding the pits their line of battle came over their works, and charging on our men pushed them slowly back. General Wright then brought up Wharton's division of his corps, and with their help the command retained possession of the rifle pits.

The fighting in the front of the Second and Sixth corps was of a most desperate character, and the losses in killed and wounded heavy on both sides. The Sixth corps loss is estimated at about 400 killed, wounded and missing. The Second corps loss will not fall far short of that number.

The 6th corps captured nearly 500 prisoners, and the 2d corps somewhere near 600. During the battle Gen. Crawford's division halted and remained outside of the range of the shells, by the President, Gens. Grant and Meade, and several ladies.

The Times' Army of the Potomac special of the 25th says: The affair of to-day has been in contemplation a long time and was well prepared for. It was known that the enemy had been previously concentrating all their best troops and a large number of guns near the point of attack; had provided abundance of ammuntion, and completed the arrangements deemed requisite to enable them to take the desired position. If they had succeeded they would have severed the communication between this army and City Point, and deprived us of all chances of obtaining supples. We should then have been driven to the extreme of assaulting them in their own works or abandon this encampment. The place chosen for the demonstration, though not the strongest part of our lines, possessed advantages found no where else along our front. It was on the extreme right of this army, on the south side of the Appomattox river, and where the shape of the ground afforded excellent facilities for Appomattox river, and where the shape of the ground afforded excellent facilities for rapidly entrenching and securing themselves. It would have given them complete command of the line of our military railroad, and perhaps rendered our position here untenable.

Petersburg would have been freed from our grasp, and Richmond released from its present precarious condition.

The Herald's 9th corps special, describing the attack on Fort Stedman, says: Without arousing suspicion, the rebel troops got safely out of the line of works thrown up for the protection of their skirmishers. At a given signal they bounded over these rapidly, cutting gaps in their chevaux de freise, and pressed on toward our line. A portion of the Union line attacked was occupied by the troops of the 9th Corps. The attack was so unexpected, and made in such overwhelming force that it caused our skirmish line to give way before the reserve could support it, and the rebels pressed on and succeeded in breaking our lines at a point just this side of Fort Stedman, this side of the Appomattox river. On the front line are two strong works, then comes Fort McGilvery, and to the left of the latter are battwo strong works, then comes Fort McGilvery, and to the left of the latter are batteries nine and ten, Fort Stedman, battery No. 1, mortar battery, and Fort Haskell. This embraces a frontage of about a mile and a quarter in length.

On this line the whole fighting was done. On reaching our abatis the enemy poured in a terrific volley, while their pioneers under a heavy return fire made many large gaps of sufficient size for an easy passage of large bodies of troops. It was but the work of a very few minutes for them to force our main line, which they did, making a breach at a point not far to the left of Fort Stedman. Breaking the left of this work, they passed round to the trav-eled road and captured the fort by charging it in the rear.

Immediately succeeding the attack Gen.
McLaughlin, who had command of the line just to the left of where it is forced, hurried into Fort Stedman and was giving orders and cheering his men up to the last moment before he was captured.

Schofield's Advance.

The Tribune's Goldsboro special of the 22d gives the following account of Sherman and Schofield's movements:

General Cox advanced from Kinston towards Goldsboro Sunday morning. The remainder of the corps followed on Monday. The enemy had already fallen back, leaving the road clear, but destroying bridges and culverts. A body of the enemy's cavalry disputed our advance.

He Communicates with Sherman.

He Communicates with Sherman. Sunday communication was opened with Sherman. Gen. Schofield sent Capt. Wing with an escort, who succeeded in reaching his headquarters. In the meantime Sherman's scouts arrived at Schofield's head-quarters, bringing word that his advance was within 15 miles of Smithfield. Sher-man had encountered but slight opposition;

Hampton's and Wheeler's cavalry occa-sionally coming and trying to check his advance. The Fight at Averysboro and Bentonville. Sunday evening the enemy made a stand about fifteen miles south of Smithfield, where a line of strongly entrenched-field works had been thrown up, and with bat-teries in position, opened on Gen. Sherman. The 20th corps, forming the center, were the first engaged. The 14th corps consti-tuting the right and the 17th the left, were advanced, and a brisk fight followed, in which our own and the rebel army heavily engaged. Our own loss was not heavy. In the meantime Gen. Schofield pushed forward rapidly. The advance of Sherman's left wing on the enemy's right in the direction of Smithfield, made it necessary for the enemy to fall rapidly back to cover this point. Schofield continued to press them throughout Monday, and on Tuesday entered Goldsboro.

Tuesday Sherman advanced again and skirmished with the rebel rear guard till reaching Bentonville. Here the enemy had entrenched on the opposite side of Mill Creek. The 20th corps was first engaged and at noon a sharp fight was progressing along the whole line, the cavalry of Kilpatrick being actively engaged upon the left flank. flank.
The 20th corps suffered a temporary check, but the 14th corps coming up in good time, they held the ground. The 17th corps was advanced to the support of the 14th and 20th corps, and succeed in turning the enemy's right and compelled it to give way. to give way.

The enemy then fell back abandoning his works and passing through Smithfield took the road towards Raleigh. Sherman followed up the retreating rebels and entered Smithfield without further fighting.

ORDER BY THE PRESIDENT.

GENERAL ANDERSON TO SUPERINTEND

The President has ordered Brevet Major The President has ordered Brevet Major General Anderson to raise over Fort Sumter at noon on the 14th of April, the same United States flag that floated over it at the time of the rebel assault, and that it be saluted with one hundred guns from Fort Sumter, and from every fort and rebel battery that then fired on Fort Sumpter. Also, that suitable military ceremonies be performed, under the direction of General W. T. Sherman, whose operations compelled the evacuation of Charleston, or, is formed, under the direction of General W. T. Sherman, whose operations com-pelled the evacuation of Charleston, or, in his absence, by General Gilmore; and also, that the naval forces at Charleston be di-rected to participate in the ceremonies, and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher be invited to deliver an address on that occasion.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

FURTHER INTERESTING PARTICULARS OF THE LATE MOVEMENTS.

er, which has just arrived from the front, brings news of a general engagement all along our lines to-day. This doubtless refers to Saturday.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The Herald's 6th corps correspondent says: Just four hours after the repulse of the rebel attack on the right, the thunder of artillery and the crash of musketry were heard on the left. This time we were the attacking party. Our object was to prevent the rebels from massing their troops, and, at the same time, to ascertain, if possible, their strength. The rebel line captured is considerably in advance of our main line, upon which they had erected an elaborate series of rifle-pits, behind which they could have massed twenty thousand men.

They were driven out of their works, and compelled to take shelter in the forts. The majority, however, preferred to be captured. The charge was made with great gallantry by our men, and the line was occupied, but the rebels massed an overwhelming body of troops, and returned, and in turn drove our men out. The artillery opened, during which our assaulting party was reinforced. which our assaulting party was reinforced, and another charge was made. It was irresistible, and the rebels soon scattered, though scores remained to be captured.

Col. Dwight, of the 122d New York, was killed in this charge. The result of this fight is looked upon as showing that the energy of Lee's troops is dwindling down to zero. They fight like hopeless, not desperate men. Even their artillery is not served withold-timed energy and precision.

LATEST.—The new position gained and occupied by this corps is now held by a strong body of our troops, who will be able to repel any attack.

The 2d corps correspondent says the troops were aroused at an early hour by the reports of fighting on the right. The men board.

were put in line, and reconnoisances sent out, which returned, bringing in some prisoners.

Soon after the enemy's skirmishers were met and driven off, and their picket line and rifle pits were occupied by our troops.
About five o'clock the enemy made an attack. They came up in gallant style, and demonstrated that there was still some fight in them; it was successfully met and repulsed. However they soon reformed, and again advanced, only to be driven back again advanced, only to be driven back with great slaughter. Four assaults were thus repulsed, when the enemy withdrew.

The 5th corps correspondent says: There was wide spread enthusiasm at night over the glorious successes of the day. Between the glorious successes of the day is glorious successes of the day. Between the glorious successes of the day is glorious successes of the day. Between the glorious successes of the day is glorious successes of the day. Between the glorious successes of the day is glorious su three and four thousand prisoners were re-ported ours, and it is reported that several hundred have just been brought in. Out of the 110 rebel officers captured in the attack on Fort Stedman there were representatives of forty different regiments, embracing the whole of Early's old corps.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, March 26.—The engagement here yesterday was without doubt the most important suc-cess for the Union arms that has taken place since our arrival in front of Peters. Not only was the enemy met, but defeated at every point.

But the result has demonstrated the fact that they have lost heart in their cause, and that large numbers are ready and anxious down their arms and give up the After they had succeeded in gaining pos session of Fort Steadman, they at once fell to plundering the baggage in the tents, and all that their officers could do could not induce them to desist.

Those who remained in line fought with nothing like the enthusiasm they exhibited last summer, and many laid down their arms at the first opportunity of reaching the rear. On witnessing this, the rebel officers determined to return to their own line as rapidly as possible, and, urging the men over the works, managed to get a large portion of the assaulting column back in Hundreds, however, remained and hid and waited for our men to take them.

FROM MEXICO.

LATE SUCCESSES OF THE NATIONAL ARMY.
WASHINGTON, March 27.—Some official advices from Chihuahua, Mexico, to February 3d, have been received here. An extra official paper contains the following news of the French defeat:

The Government has just received authoritative news that Gen. Coerna, after having caused the French force which marched from Durango to Mazatlan through Sierre Nevada some loss, defeated entirely in the village of Varanes part of the regiment of Chescour the regiment of Chasseurs.
Other advices state that the French forces at Durango advanced to Chihuahua, and on the 20th of January they were at Rio Florida. Next day, however, they returned to Durango, the Mexicans being prepared to receive them. General Negue had left Chihuahua with all the available force there to meet the French.

the current rates at the close of last month. New Orbuyers, all of which are offered fully 20 per cent. less than the current rates at the close of last month. New Orleans Sugar, prime, that was recently purchased in New Orleans at 23½c, without adding the freight, is now offered at 22c. The stock of Louisiana sugar, however, is very light, and holders are not much disposed to make concessions. Island sugars sell at much lower rates. The Provision market is pretty well sustained, with no supplies of country bacon, but city dealers steadily sup-plying country customers, as the stocks in the country are very light. The Flour market is very dull, with no demand whatever, excepting for extra brands for family use. The weather was cloudy with a light rain in the morning, but clearing off in the evening. The river is talling very fast.

The Money market continues exceedingly tight, the banks doing very little business, and Government Vouchers are pressing the market at 10 to 12 discount, with very little currency to meet them. Gold, as we learn by special dispatches, opened to-day in New York at 163%, and at 12:39 it had advanced to 154%. The banks are taking Eastern Exchange, which is scarce, at % and selling at par. The Cincinnati Gazette of to-day says:

"The banks threw out Kentucky currency to-day, with the exception of Northern Bank, and put it at a discount of 1815 per cent. The reason of this is the refusal of the parent banks to turnish greenbacks for the notes of the branches. Under this system the Kentucky banks will have less difficulty in retiring their circulation than when they paid a premium for it." The brokers are quoting at the following range, th
